

The California Council on Economic Education, California Association of School Economics Teachers, and L.A. Unified present:

Engaging Activities for the Economics Classroom

In today's world, students need to learn the essential skills of economics and its practical applications to their lives; teachers need to present lessons of economics principles and the economic way of thinking.

Teacher attendees receive and learn how to access a range of outstanding resources (activities, lessons, and projects) to engage students in the teaching of economics and personal finance.

AUDIENCE:

Voluntary Professional Development for History/Social Studies Department heads, Secondary teachers of Economics, Business and Personal Finance

WHAT:

 Participants will receive a $75 stipend plus a copy of 'High School Economics.'*

 Dinner will be provided.*
