SN 708- Health Promotion and Disease Prevention

NURS SN 708 is an 8-week course designed to introduce the school nurse credential candidate (SNSCC) to health promotion and disease prevention utilizing concepts in levels of disease prevention, the nursing process, community assessment, and collaboration within the school and community setting. An emphasis will be placed on health promotion, risk reduction, and disease management. The course will also incorporate nursing knowledge to offer preventative, health promoting, and protective services that benefit the pediatric population.
